The participants, totaling about 50 from startups to established companies certainly went home feeling enlightened on the prospect of IPs and its importance, irrespective of the stage of growth of the company. It is not something to be taken lightly in this day and age of innovations when IPs are considered as treasures of a company which should be closely guarded and protected.

KiasuLab will continue to bring and share such topics of imminent interests with startups so that we can be wiser in our journey on entrepreneurship. We, as a nation is lagging behind in the filing of patents as compared to other developing economies, let alone the developed ones. Therefore, with our promotion of awareness on IPs and its importance, we hope to contribute towards the improvement of IP registration in the near future.
